

PEER SUPPORT

It's important to have a network of people who can provide peer support and validation. Generation Patient hosts virtual meetings on the first and third Sundays of each month for college students (including graduate, undergraduate, and even prospective college students) with chronic conditions.

Use this QR code to find out more or to register!

Resources

Online Degree Programs

These are just four universities that have a good reputation for their online degree programs, but, since the pandemic, many universities now offer online and/or hybrid degree programs. If you have a school or degree in mind, do your research to see if there are accredited programs out there:

- University of New Hampshire
- Arizona State University
- The New School
- Pennsylvania State University

Additional Higher Education Resources:

- Rate My Professors
- Generation Patient Higher Education Resource Page
- Accommodations 101
- Accommodations Letter from Your Doctor – Template
- Campus Engagement: Advocating for Chronic Medical Disabilities within Student Life
- Considerations for Starting a Disability-Related St

